ABOUT THE ARTISTS

CORY MARSH (Canada)

Cory launched his career in competitive national gymnastics, particularly in floor acrobatic. He made the transition to the circus at eighteen when he registered at the National Circus School in Montréal where he specialized in Cyr wheel. Always on the lookout for new challenges, he also got into the world of DJing and began mixing and producing music. Ever since, he's been looking out for new, original ways to combine these two worlds. With his rhythm, technique, and passion, Cory will get any audience moving.

JÉRÉMY VITUPIER (France)

Jérémy developed an appreciation for the performing arts as a child, thanks to his parents who exposed him to shows of various kinds. First, he focused on his studies and obtained a university degree in social studies. His studies led him to teach circus, clowning, and performance. He then entered the National Circus School in Montréal. His talent was recognized at the Festival Mondial du Cirque de Demain in 2016 where he won the bronze medal for his clown duo act with Antonin Wicky. He was part of the Cirkopolis cast since 2015.

UNA BENNETT (United States, United Kingdom)

Una has been practicing the circus arts since she was a young girl. Soon after learning to tie her shoes, she was on her way touring street festivals with her brother, ball-walking, hula-hooping, and playing the violin. Before joining the National Circus School in Montréal, Una trained at Versatile Arts in Seattle and Circus Smirkus, a traveling youth circus. Una loves to create, whether it's on her aerial rope, knitting socks, or even doing her hair, by always asking herself, "What would happen if ...?"

ANTONIN WICKY (Switzerland)

Antonin began his training in artistic gymnastics at the age of five. At the age of 16, he caught the performance bug and became involved with theatrical improvisation, which also led him to an interest in circus. He started developing his skills in circus arts and decided to attend LeZarti'Cirque, a circus school in Sainte-Croix, Switzerland. This training confirmed his passion for the circus arts and the incomparable adrenalin rush they provided. To further his training, he entered the National Circus School in Montréal. His talent was recognized at the Festival Mondial du Cirque de Demain in 2016 where he won the bronze medal for his clown duo act with Jérémy Vitupier. He was part of the Cirkopolis cast since 2015.

JULIUS BITTERLING (Germany)

Julius began his professional training in France at the Centre régional des arts du cirque de Lomme and continued in China with acrobats from Beijing. He further deepened his artistic development at the National Circus School in Montréal with his partner, César Mispelon. He's all about artistic and cultural versatility when it comes to achieving bold creations that bring together people from all backgrounds to demonstrate equality and human universality.

CÉSAR MISPELON (France)

At just four years old, César discovered the circus at the Centre régional des arts du cirque de Lomme. Having grown up in the circus world, he remains inspired by all the artists he has met at school or doing a show; these inspirations feed his imagination and creativity. After developing his discipline of hand balancing and presenting a piece at the Circa festival, he then headed off to circus school in Beijing. It was there that César met Julius Bitterling, who became his hand-to-hand partner. César continued his training at the National Circus School in Montréal, where in addition to deepening his art, he came away with many great human experiences.

ANDREI ANISSIMOV (Canada, Russia)

Andrei was plunged into the art world at a very young age when he attended his sister's voice lessons. He followed in her musical footsteps studying voice as well as piano, guitar, and domra. This led him into musical theatre, where he was initiated into dance. Unable to stay in one place for a second, he threw himself into a range of sports before focusing on artistic gymnastics, just as his grandfather had. He eventually left the family nest to move to Montréal and continue his training in hand to hand and Chinese pole at the National Circus School over five years. Andrei is now ready to discover the nomadic circus life with his partner, Emma.

EMMA ROGERS (United States)

Growing up in the New Hampshire forest, Emma loved the outdoors. Always hiking, kayaking, or climbing trees, it was only natural for the young girl to get into gymnastics. Then, looking for a change after several years of competition, she discovered that the circus arts offered a perfect balance between her athletic side and her more sensitive, creative side. Emma had her first experiences performing in front of audiences with the Circus Smirkus troupe, then completed her training at the National Circus School in Montréal. That's where she met Andrei, her hand-to-hand partner, while also specializing in aerial straps. She's really looking forward to discovering the world with her new circus family.

SABRINA HALDE (Canada)

After her music education at Cégep de Saint-Laurent and the Université de Montréal, Sabrina started out her career as a jazz singer in a variety of musical groups. She then met Jean-Vivier Lévesque and together they created a project called La Pieuvre, which became Groenland. This group, with its orchestral indie pop sound and dark yet hopeful lyrics in English, grew and released its first album in 2013. They made a name for themselves touring all over Québec and playing European music festivals. At the end of 2017, the group took a break and Sabrina, after receiving a call from Éloi Painchaud, set off on her adventure with Cirque Éloize.

TUEDON ARIRI (Canada)

Tuedon grew up in Vancouver in a family that exposed her to the arts, particularly public art from the local communities. With her long legs, flexibility, and creativity, Tuedon represented British Columbia at competitions in Canada and the United States for several years, winning medals in artistic gymnastics. Seeking to combine her twin passions for sports and art, she arrived at the age of fifteen at the National Circus School in Montréal where she specialized in aerial straps, contortion, and hula hoop. Tuedon aspires to redefine the discipline of aerial straps with a powerful combination of femininity, contortion, vulnerability, and strength.

PHILIPPE DUPUIS (Canada)

Philippe was born and grew up in Québec. Before doing his high school and college studies at the National Circus School in Montréal, he was already training in diving and trampoline. Always seeking new challenges, Philippe collected a variety of artistic experiences such as acrobatics and juggling before he graduated. Not only is he crazy about the circus, he also loves music and design!

COOPER LEE SMITH (United States)

From Minneapolis, Cooper moved to Montréal to attend the National Circus School. Freshly graduated in June 2018, he distinguishes himself by his atypical humor, his massive presence and his interdisciplinary approach to acrobatic art. Cooper first approached creation through dance, music, and video before turning to circus. He collaborates occasionally with Cirque du Soleil and presented in 2017 and 2018 the street show The Space Enthusiasts in various festivals.
