Lazare

Lazare Diamonds... consistently polished performances with unparalleled brilliance and fire

Hands Jewelers
offers you Iowa's largest selection of Lazare diamonds and diamond jewelry

HANDS JEWELERS
SINCE 1854
DOWNTOWN IOWA CITY • 351-0333 • 1-800-728-2888

HANCHER PRESENTS

Hancher Auditorium
Iowa Center for the Arts
The University of Iowa

KRONOS QUARTET

Friday and Saturday,
January 25 and 26, 1991—8:00 p.m.

DAVID HARRINGTON, Violin
JOHN SHERBA, Violin
HANK DUTT, Viola
JOAN JEANRENAUD, Cello

Jay Cloidt, Audio Engineer
Larry Neff, Lighting Designer

Janet Cowperthwaite, Managing Director
Tara Karki, Associate Director
Melissa Smith, Development Director
Maya Roth, Administrative Assistant

Kronos records exclusively for Elektra/Nonesuch.

Kronos Quartet
1235-A Ninth Avenue
San Francisco, CA 94122
415/731-3533

These performances are supported, in part, by a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts, a federal agency.
Before the sun sets today, we'll make it possible for a few more people to see the sun rise tomorrow.
Before the sun sets today, we'll make it possible for a few more people to see the sun rise tomorrow.

If your idea of fun is saving gobs of money on classic Lands' End clothes, they're here—"outlet priced" at 20% or more off our original catalog prices.

*Selected items only; not all sizes and colors available.

Lands' End Outlet

IOWA CITY
10 South Clinton
Just across from the Old Capitol Buildings
(319) 338-2660

Wonder What's Playing at Hancher... tomorrow? next week? next month?

Call 337-7000 ext. 4115

photoworld stores
old capitol center 338-7222
506 east college street 338-1035
- park 'n' shop - free parking -

RADIO KRONOS

Presenting a cross-section of musical cultures in ten fast-paced programs.

January 4 - March 15
KSUI-FM, 91.7
Fridays at 6:30 p.m.
Tonight's Program

ALFRED HARRIYEVICh SCHNITTEK, along with other major composers such as Denisov, Gubaidulina, Mansurjan, Silvestrov, Shchedrin, and Tishchenko, belongs to that group of musicians which has given new life to Soviet music in the last 25 years. And if Schnitke is one of the best known of these composers internationally, that is due not only to his undoubted musical ability, but also to his peculiar poetic vision; a style and musical language which stand out for their originality in the landscape of modern music.

This originality has become clear above all in the last few years, during which he has moved decisively away from the "aleatory" techniques of his most experimental period and has been increasingly attracted by what is known as "eclecticism." In truth "eclecticism," at least as it is usually understood, is not the most appropriate term to describe his work and indeed can sound somewhat reductive. It would be more accurate to say that Schnitke has made a conscious choice to break across the barriers between different musical languages and remain open to the great variety of sonic stimuli available to the modern composer and to their wealth of cultural and semantic connotations. In no other epoch has the simultaneous "consumption" of widely differing musical styles (classical, popular, consumer, ancient, modern) been so widespread. Alfred Schnitke's work is based on this realization, that in a certain sense and under certain conditions, all music has today become "contemporary" music.

Hence, the intertwining of sonic elements of various origin, his frequent quotation of apparently extraneous (jazz, for example) or historical (at times he even poses as a "Romantic") styles, which are immediately absorbed by a musical construction based not only on "contrast" and "discontinuity," but also on the principles of transition, juxtaposition, intertwining, juxtaposition, and superimposition. These elements bring Schnitke curiously close to the non-purist composers of the "stylistic crisis," to the "gestural" composers of recent and not so recent history. The greatest exponents of this style at the beginning of the century were Mahler and Reger, followed by Shostakovich, Stravinsky, and Berg. On these singular bases, which at times tend towards conceptualism, Schnitke introduces his own rich and vibrant musical spirit, a taste for appealing, dense sonorities, which have made his works popular with audiences outside the restricted circle of experts and connoisseurs of "new" music, even though he remains in many respects an "experimental" composer.

Alfred Schnitke was born on November 24, 1934 in Engels in the Soviet Union (then German Republic of Volga). His father was a journalist and translator, his mother was a German teacher and later wrote for the German language newspaper Neues Leben.

Schnitke began his musical studies in 1946 in Vienna, the city where his father wrote for a Soviet German language newspaper. He studied piano with Charlotte Rover and worked on his first compositions. In 1948, he moved to Moscow, where he took his diploma first of all as a choir-master.

From 1953 to 1958, he studied counterpoint and composition with Yevgeny Golovin and instrumentation with Nikolai Baluk at the Moscow Conservatory. He was particularly encouraged by Philipp Herschelkowitz, a disciple of Webern's who resided in the Soviet capital.

In 1962, after three years preparation, Schnitke was appointed as an instrumentation teacher at the Moscow Conservatory, a post which he remained until 1972. Since 1963, he has been a member of the Federation of Composers and since 1970, a member of the Federation of Cinematographers in the Soviet Union. Since 1962, he has published many musical essays (on Shostakovich, Prokofiev, Stravinsky, Bartók, Webern, Berio, and Ligeti, among others) and has occasionally collaborated with the Studio of Electronic Music in Moscow.

He has undertaken tours abroad, first in the socialist countries, then, from 1967 on, in the Federal Republic of Germany, in Austria, England, and France. His works are performed in all of the principal contemporary music festivals and are included in various programs of the great orchestras.

In 1980, Schnitke was guest teacher at the Vienna Hochschule für Musik und Darstellende Kunst. In 1981, he was elected member of the Akademie der Künste of the German Democratic Republic, as well as of the Munich Bayerische Akademie der Schönen Künste.

Copyright 1987 by G. Ricordi & Co. s.p.a. Milano

Quartet No. 1

Schnitke's First Quartet illustrates the composer's rugged and individual handling of the twelve-tone row, which is characteristic of his early works. The piece reveals a departure from the influences of Shostakovich.

Quartet No. 2

Quartet No. 2, written nearly 15 years after the First Quartet, reveals a radical stylistic transformation. Ghosts of themes can be heard in the work, rather than the themes themselves, while echoes of Russian Orthodox chants are sometimes audible through the dense haze of sound. This moving piece was written in memory of distinguished film director Larissa Shepitko for whose films some of the best Soviet composers have written music. Schnitke composed the music for two of Shepitko's films.

Quartet No. 3

Schnitke's Third Quartet is consistent with his characteristic pattern of moderate, order, and economy, and progresses from simplicity to complexity in a sequence of rows, contrasting textures. The three movements, played without pause, unfold a transformation of sorts, highlighting the influential roots of the composer's voice within the context of his own autonomous creativity.

Quartet No. 4

Quartet No. 4 is one of Schnitke's most recent works. Following the composer's long, intense phase of arrangements in traditional harmonic and melodic form, Quartet No. 4 renews the style of the second Viennese school, which has been one of Schnitke's major influences.

Arts Outreach
Arts Outreach sends students and faculty artists from the Iowa Center for the Arts to schools and communities throughout the state, as well as offering a variety of performances and educational opportunities on the campus. Activities can be arranged for special populations. For information about program services, contact Arts Outreach, 319/335-2694.

RECK violin shop
606 1st Ave, Coralville, IA
(319) 351-8374
Dealers and Restorers of Fine String Instruments

The STATE ROOM
featuring •
fine dining at the Heart of Campus Life.

Please call 335-1507 for reservations

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

IOWA HOUSE

110 guest rooms with original Iowa artists’ work
Hospitality van service
Free on campus parking

For reservations please call 335-3339

The University of Iowa Alumni Association
Tonight's Program

ALFRED HARRIEYEVICH SCHNITKE, along with other major composers such as Denisov, Gubaidulina, Mansaryan, Silvestrov, Shchedrin, and Tishchenko, belongs to that group of musicians which has given new life to Soviet music in the last 25 years. And if Schnitke is one of the best known of these composers internationally, that is due not only to his undoubted musical ability, but also to his peculiar poetic vision: a style and musical language which stand out for their originality in the landscape of modern music.

This originality has become clear above all in the last few years, during which he has moved decisively away from the "aleatory" techniques of his most experimental period and has been increasingly attracted by what is known as "eclecticism." In truth "eclecticism," at least as it is usually understood, is not the most appropriate term to describe his work and indeed can sound somewhat reductive. It would be more accurate to say that Schnitke has made a conscious choice to break across the barriers between different musical languages and remain open to the great variety of sonic stimuli available to the modern composer and to their programs of the great orchestras.

In 1980, Schnitke was guest teacher at the Vienna Hochschule für Musik und darstellende Kunst. In 1981, he was elected member of the Akademie der Künste of the German Democratic Republic, as well as of the Munich Bayerische Akademie der Schönen Künste.

Copyright 1987 by G. Ricordi & Co. s.p.a. Milano

Quartet No. 1

Schnitke's First Quartet illustrates the composer's rugged and individual handling of the twelve-tone row, which is characteristic of his early works. The piece reveals a departure from the influences of Schoenberg.

Quartet No. 2

Quartet No. 2, written nearly 15 years after the First Quartet, reveals a radical stylistic transformation. Ghosts of themes can be heard in the work, rather than the themes themselves, while echoes of Russian Orthodox chants are sometimes audible through the dense haze of sound. This moving piece was written in memory of distinguished film director Larissa Shepeleva for whose films some of the best Soviet composers have written music. Schnitke composed the music for two of Shepel's films.

Quartet No. 3

Schnitke's Third Quartet is consistent with his characteristic pattern of moderate, order, and economy, and progresses from simplicity to complexity in a series of new, contrasting textures. The three movements, played without pause, unfold a transformation of sorts highlighting the influential roots of the composer's voice within the context of his own autonomous creativity.

Quartet No. 4

Quartet No. 4 is one of Schnitke's most recent works. Following the composer's long, intense phase of arrangements in traditional harmonic and melodic form, Quartet No. 4 renews the style of the second Vienna School, which has been one of Schnitke's major influences.

Re: Antiques

224 So. Linn
Iowa City, Iowa
(319) 357-5015
Tues.-Sat. 11-5

Quality Oak & Walnut Furniture

Eble Music Co.

Sheet Music and Books

115 S. Linn St.
338-0313

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

IOWA HOUSE

110 guest rooms with original Iowa artist's work
Hospitality van service
Free on campus parking

The University of Iowa Alumni Association

Arts Outreach

Arts Outreach sends students and faculty artists from the Iowa Center for the Arts to schools and communities throughout the state, as well as offering a variety of performances and educational opportunities on the campus. Activities can be arranged for special populations. For information about program services, contact Arts Outreach, 319/335-2694.

RECK violin shop

Rev. 6 and 1st Ave. Coralville, IA
(319) 351-8874

Dealers and Restorers of Fine String Instruments

featuring
fine dining at the Heart of Campus Life.

the STATE ROOM

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

you're the main character in all of our performances!

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

IOWA HOUSE

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

Schedule of events please call 335-2507 for reservations

110 guest rooms with original Iowa artist's work
Hospitality van service
Free on campus parking

The University of Iowa Alumni Association

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION

IOWA HOUSE

IOWA MEMORIAL UNION
PROGRAM
Saturday, January 26, 1991—8:00 p.m.
With Guest Artists: Dumi Maraire and Christian Marclay
Larry Neff, Visual Designer
Jay Cloud, Sound Designer

JUSTINIAN TAMUSUZA
MU KUBO ERY’ OMUSALAABA (1988)*
HAMZA EL DIN
ESCLAY—THE WATER WHEEL (1989)*
FODAY MUSA SUSO
TILIBYOYO SUNSET (1990)*
DUMI MARAIRE
MAI NOZIPO (MOTHER NOZIPO) & OTHER WORKS (1990)*
World Premiere with guest artist, Dumi Maraire
INTERMISSION

ISTVAN MARTA
THE GLASSBLOWER’S DREAM (1990)*
JOHN ZORN
THE DEAD MAN (1990)*
JOHN OSWALD
SPECTRE (1990)*
NEW WORK
Music by Kronos Quartet, Christian Marclay and Jay Cloud, and Visual Design by Larry Neff
World Premiere with guest artist, Christian Marclay

*Written for Kronos

The commissioning of Mat Nozipo was made possible by a grant from Meet the Composer/Reader’s Digest Commissioning Program, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Lila Wallace-Reader’s Digest Fund, along with a consortium of presenters including Hancher Auditorium.

The New Work was commissioned for the Kronos Quartet by Hancher Auditorium.

Tonight’s Program

Justitian Tamusuza was born in 1951 in Miyana, Uganda. He studied composition with Kevin Volans at Queens University in Belfast, Northern Ireland. Currently, Tamusuza teaches music and composition at Makerere University in Kampala, Uganda.

Mu Kubo Ery’ Omusalaaba, Tamusuza’s first string quartet, was commissioned for Kronos by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Escalay—The Water Wheel

Hamza El Din (b. 1960)

El Din was born in Nubia, Sudan in 1920. He studied music in Cairo at the Fouad Institute of Music and at Rome’s Academia di Santa Alighieri. El Din has performed concerts throughout the world and has composed for numerous television programs and film scores, including Francis Ford Coppola’s Black Stallion.

Escalay—The Water Wheel, which was adapted for the Kronos Quartet by Tohu Ueda with El Din, is the composer’s first work for Kronos. Of the work El Din writes, “Escalay means the waterwheel in Nubian, my mother tongue. The waterwheel is an antique machine used for irrigation. This piece shows a scene where an old man is sitting and urging corm to move and turn the waterwheel in the fields. The sound of the gears on the waterwheel, the rhythmical steps of corm and other repeated sounds hypnotize the old person so that he himself starts making his corm sound. He is singing a song as follows: He is singing a very religious song thinking of Prophet Abraham who is the father of the three major religions. After the pilgrimage season to Mecca, every family of Moslems has to sacrifice a healthy male sheep and they have to share it with the poor. As the waterwheel is moving, he repeats this song as if the moment is eternal. The message of the piece is that God doesn’t want the sacrifice of human beings, but till now it is still happening everywhere.”

Escalay—The Water Wheel was commissioned for the Kronos Quartet by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Tilhibo (Santo)
Foday Musa Suso (b. 1950)

A virtuosic lora player and drummer, composer Foday Musa Suso was born in the Serre Haradji Village of the West African nation of Gambia. Born into the griot lineage, Suso began his musical training as soon as he could speak. After studying with his father until age 11, Suso undertook training with master lora player, Suskou Suso, and tama (d’ang) drummer Jallanmi Suso. He has performed concerts throughout the world, as a solo artist, and on tours with his own band, Mandingo Griot Society. From 1975 through 1977, Suso taught at the University of Ghana’s Institute of African Studies, and since the late 1970s, he has lived in the United States.

Suso’s collaborations with American jazz artists Don Cherry and Herbie Hancock have led to many recording and performance projects, including the duo album Village Life, developed with Hancock. In 1984, Suso, Hancock, and Bill Laswell composed the official theme music for the Olympic Games field events. More recently, he has worked in collaboration with Philip Glass to compose the score for the American premiere of Jean Genet’s The Screens and developed the African instrumentation for the motion picture, Mountains of the Moon.

Foday Musa Suso’s work was commissioned by Lincoln Center for the Kronos Quartet.

Mat Nozipo
Dumisani Maraire (b. 1943)

Dumisani Maraire, known as “Dumi,” came to the United States in 1968 as an artist-in-residence, ethnomusicology at the University of Washington, Seattle. A native of Zimbabwe, Dumi had years of experience and training in the musical traditions of his people, the VaTajura (Ghomani), the largest ethnic group in Zimbabwe.

Dumi has toured extensively throughout the United States and Canada with his own marimba band and has released many recordings. In spring 1990, Dumi received his doctoral degree at the University of Washington and has recently returned to Zimbabwe to establish an ethnomusicology program in the African language and literature department at the University of Zimbabwe.

The commissioning of Mat Nozipo was made possible by a grant from the Meet the Composer/Reader’s Digest Commissioning Program, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Lila Wallace-Reader’s Digest Fund.

The Glassblower’s Dream
Istvan Marta (b. 1952)

Istvan Marta was born in Budapest in 1952. He studied composition at the Bontok Secondary School and is now a
PROGRAM

Saturday, January 26, 1991—8:00 p.m.

With Guest Artists: Dumi Maraire and Christian Marclay
Larry Neff, Visual Designer
Jay Cloid, Sound Designer

JUSTINIAN TAMUSUZA
MU KUBO ERY' OMUSALAABA (1988)*

HAMA El DIN
ESCALAY—THE WATER WHEEL (1989)*

FODAY MUSA SUSO
TILLIBOYO SUNSET (1990)*

DUMI MARAIRE
MAI NOZIPO (MOTHER NOZIPO) & OTHER WORKS (1990)*
World Premiere with guest artist, Dumi Maraire

INTERMISSION

ISTVAN MARTA
THE GLASSBLOWER'S DREAM (1990)*

JOHN ZORN
THE DEAD MAN (1990)*

JOHN OSWALD
SPECTRE (1990)*

NEW WORK
Music by Kronos Quartet, Christian Marclay and Jay Cloid, and Visual Design by Larry Neff
World Premiere with guest artist, Christian Marclay

*Written for Kronos

The commissioning of Mai Nizzle was made possible by a grant from Meet the Composer/Reader's Digest Commissioning Program, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Ella Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund, along with a consortium of presenters including Hancher Auditorium.

The New Work was commissioned for the Kronos Quartet by Hancher Auditorium.

Tonight's Program

Mu Kubo Ery' Omuusalaaba
Justinian Tamusuzu (b. 1951)

Justinian Tamusuzu was born in 1951 in Mwanza, Uganda. He studied composition with Kevin Volack at Queens University in Belfast, Northern Ireland. Currently, Tamusuzu teaches music and composition at Makerere University in Kampala, Uganda.

Mu Kubo Ery' Omuusalaaba, Tamusuzu’s first string quartet, was commissioned for Kronos by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Escalay—The Water Wheel
Hama El Din (b. 1929)

Hama El Din was born in Nubia, Sudan in 1929. He studied music in Cairo at the Poud Institute of Music and at Rome’s Academia di Santa Alfgheri. El Din has performed concerts throughout the world and has composed for numerous television programs and film scores, including Francis Ford Coppola’s Black Stallion.

Escalay—The Water Wheel, which was adapted for the Kronos Quartet by Tohru Ueda with El Din, is the composer’s first work for Kronos. Of the work El Din writes, “Escalay means the water wheel in Nubian, my mother tongue. The water wheel is an antique machine used for irrigation. This piece shows a scene where an old man is sitting and urging cows to move and turn the water wheel in the fields. The sound of the gears on the water wheel, the rhythmic steps of cow and other repeated sounds hypnotize the old person so that he himself starts making his own sound. He is singing a song as follows: He is singing a very religious song thinking of Prophet Abraham who is the father of the three major religions. After the pilgrimage season to Mecca, every family of Muslims has to sacrifice a healthy male sheep and they have to share it with the poor.” As the waterwheel is moving, he repeats this song as if the moment is eternal. The message of the piece is that God doesn’t want the sacrifice of human beings, but till now it is still happening everywhere.”

Escalay—The Water Wheel was commissioned for the Kronos Quartet by Lincoln Center for the Performing Arts.

Tilliboy (Sunset)
Foday Musa Suso (b. 1950)

A virtuosic kora player and drummer, composer Foday Musa Suso was born in the Serre Hamadi Village of the West African nation of Gambia. Born into the grip lineage, Suso began his musical training as soon as he could speak. After studying with his father until age 11, Suso undertook training with master kora player, Suikou Suso, and tama (kunyang) drummer Jalilmai Suso. He has performed concerts throughout the world, as a solo artist, and on tours with his own band, Mandingo Griot Society. From 1975 through 1977, Suso taught at the University of Ghana’s Institute of African Studies, and since the late 1970s, he has lived in the United States.

Suso’s collaborations with American jazz artists Don Cherry and Herb Harris have led to many recording and performance projects, including the duet album Village Life, developed with Hancock. In 1984, Suso, Hancock, and Bill Laswell composed the official theme music for the Olympic Games field events. More recently, he has worked in collaboration with Phillip Glass to compose the score for the American premiere of Jean Genet’s The Screens and developed the African instrumentation for the motion picture, Mountains of the Moon.

Foday Musa Suso’s work was commissioned by Lincoln Center for the Kronos Quartet.

Mat Nizzle
Dumaisi Maraire (b. 1943)

Dumaisi Maraire, known as “Dumi,” came to the United States in 1968 as an artist-in-residence, ethnomusicology at the University of Washington, Seattle. A native of Zimbabwe, Dumi had years of experience and training in the musical traditions of his people, the Vuyapu (Shona), the largest ethnic group in Zimbabwe.

Dumi has toured extensively throughout the United States and Canada with his own marimba band and has released many recordings. In spring 1990, Dumi received his doctorate degree at the University of Washington and has recently returned to Zimbabwe to establish an ethnomusicology program in the African language and literature department at the University of Zimbabwe.

The commissioning of Mat Nizzle was made possible by a grant from the Meet the Composer/Reader’s Digest Commissioning Program, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Ella Wallace-Reader’s Digest Fund.

The Glassblower’s Dream
Istvan Marta (b. 1952)

Istvan Marta was born in Budapest in 1952. He studied composition at the Budapest Secondary School and is now a...
Biographies

In the past 12 years, the KRONOS QUARTET has emerged as a leading voice for new work. Combining a unique musical vision with a fearless dedication to experimentation, Kronos has assembled a body of work unrivaled in its range and diversity of expression, and in the process, has captured the attention of audiences worldwide.

The quartet’s extensive repertoire ranges from Bartok, Webern, and Ives to Charles Mingus, John Cage, and Howl’s Wolf. In addition to working closely with modern masters such as Terry Riley and John Zorn, Kronos commissions new works from today’s most innovative composers and stirs the wealth of musical cultures from around the world, extending its reach as far as Uganda, Australia, Japan, Argentina, and the Soviet Union.

Kronos performs annual concert seasons in San Francisco and New York, and tours extensively with more than 100 concerts each year in concert halls, clubs, and at jazz festivals throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, Japan, South America, New Zealand, Hong Kong, and Australia. The quartet produces its own radio series, Radio Kronos, which is broadcast throughout the country. Kronos records exclusively for Electric/Lennox, and recent recordings include Black Angels (1990), Salome Dances for Peace (1989), Different Trains (1989), which received a Grammy for Best Contemporary Composition; Winter War Hum (1980), White Mass Sleeps (1987), which received a Grammy nomination for Best Chamber Music Performance; and Kronos Quartet (1986).

DUMISANI ABRAHAM MARAIRE, known as “Dumi,” came to the United States in 1968 as an artist-in-residence, ethnomusicology at the University of Washington, Seattle. A native of Zimbabwe, Africa, Dumi had years of experience and training in the musical traditions of his people, the Vatapa and Shinja, the largest ethnic group in Zimbabwe.

Dumi’s classes at the University of Washington were so popular and the music so enthusiastically received that he continued to teach mbira, marimba, Shona African singing, dance, and drumming. He subsequently taught both ethnomusicology and African music at Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, for three years before starting his own private school of music in Seattle. During his residencies, Dumi became known not only for his teaching, but for his lecture demonstrations and performances. He also gave solo performances all over the United States and Canada.

In 1976, Dumi started his first serious marimba band, Dumi and the Minanzi Marimba Ensemble, which toured...
Biographies

In the past 12 years, the KRONOS QUARTET has emerged as a leading voice for new work. Combining a unique musical vision with a fearless dedication to experimentation, Kronos has assembled a body of work unique in its range and scope of expression, and in the process, has captured the attention of audiences worldwide.

The quartet's extensive repertoire ranges from Bartók, Webern, and Ives to Charles Mingus, John Cage, and Howlett's Wolf. In addition to working closely with modern masters such as Terry Riley and John Zorn, Kronos commissions new works from today's most innovative composers and strives to maintain the wealth of musical cultures from all over the world, extending its reach as far as Uganda, Australia, Japan, Argentina, and the Soviet Union.

Kronos performs annual concert seasons in San Francisco and New York, and tours extensively with more than 100 concerts each year in concert halls, clubs, and at jazz festivals throughout the United States, Canada, Europe, Japan, South America, New Zealand, Hong Kong, and Australia. The quartet produces its own radio series, Radio KRONOS, which broadcast throughout the country. Kronos records exclusively for Elektra/Nonesuch, and recent recordings include Black Angels (1990), Salome Dances for Peace (1989), Different Trains (1988), which received a Grammy for Best Contemporary Composition; Winter Was Hard (1988), White Man Sleeps (1987), which received a Grammy nomination for Best Chamber Music Performance; and Kronos Quartet (1986).

DUMISANI ABRAHAM MARIARE, known as "Dumi," came to the United States in 1968 as an artist-in-residence at the Ethnomusicology at the University of Washington, Seattle. A native of Zimbabwe, Africa, Dumi had years of experience and training in the musical traditions of his people, the Vatapa (Shona), the largest ethnic group in Zimbabwe.

Dumi's classes at the University of Washington were so popular and the music so enthusiastically received that he continued to teach mbira, marimba, Shona African singing, dance, and drumming. He subsequently taught both ethnomusicology and African music at Evergreen State College in Olympia, Washington, for three years before starting his own private school of music in Seattle. During his residencies, Dumi became known not only for his teaching, but for his lecture demonstrations and performances. He also gave solo performances all over the United States and Canada.

In 1976, Dumi started his first serious marimba band, Dumi and the Minamzi Marimba Ensemble, which toured... nationally. He also released his first marimba album Rhythms. In 1979, Dumi started his second marimba band, Dumi and the Marimba Ensemble, which toured the Pacific Northwest and the west coast. This band later toured Dumi's homeland of Zimbabwe and also performed in Mozambique (Political Solidarity Tour). While in Zimbabwe, Dumi and the Marimba Ensemble released a 45 single, Vamangwane Afikho Vusaye (Mr. Magabe is now the ruler of Zimbabwe).

In 1987, Dumi began working on his Ph.D. at the University of Washington, Seattle and also started a new band, Dumi and Minanzi III, the third chapter of Dumi's musical experience.

The infectious music played by Dumi and Minanzi III is drawn from both traditional and contemporary styles. Minanzi is a Vatapu word meaning "sounds" and in the context of music, it refers to beautiful sounds, the old traditional modes that typify Shona mbira music.

For the last decade, parallel to his sculptural work, CHRISTIAN MARCLAY has been experimenting, composing, and performing with phonograph records. In performance, he mixes a wide variety of "prepared records" on multiple turntables, fragmenting, repeating, altering speeds, playing the records backwards, etc. Ranging from the haunting to the humorous, his theater of found sound has been performed in Japan, Europe, Canada, the United States, and in New York City, where he lives. His frequent collaborators include John Zorn, Elliott Sharp, Shelly Hirsch, David Moss, and Fred Frith, among others.

LARRY NEFF has designed for many San Francisco Bay Area companies and productions including the Kronos Quartet’s Salome Dances for Peace, Black Angels, Live Video, and Different Trains, George Coates Performance Works’ Right Mind, Actual Sos, and Bone, the Paul Drescher Ensemble’s Pioneer, Power Failure, Slow Fire, and Was Are Will Be; and ODC/San Francisco’s Secret House. His work was recently featured in Lighting Dimensions magazine.

Composer JAY CLOUDT has worked as sound designer and engineer for many San Francisco Bay Area companies including the Margaret Jenkins Dance Company, the Kronos Quartet, and the Paul Drescher Ensemble. He has received a Bay Area Critics’ Circle Award for his work on the Paul Drescher Ensemble’s Slow Fire, an Isadora Duncan Award with Lisa Eckert for the sound design of Eckert’s Dry Land House. He has recently completed several compositions including Love it to Death for the Gary Palmer Dance Company, Light Fall for the Margaret Jenkins Dance Company, Kole Kat Krush for the Kronos Quartet, and The Secret House, which was composed with Paul Drescher, for ODC/San Francisco.

Lost and Found

If you lose an article during a performance, please ask an usher for assistance. Articles not claimed immediately following the performance will be sent to lost and found at the campus parking office located in the Iowa Memorial Union parking ramp.

We Believe In PERFORMANCE
The University of Iowa Community Credit Union is pleased to sponsor THE JAZZ SERIES for your enjoyment:

- Branford Marsalis October 27 - 8:00 pm
- Ramsey Lewis and Billy Taylor February 3 - 8:00 pm
- Modern Jazz Quartet February 20 - 8:00 pm

You'll also enjoy the PERFORMANCE of our Friendly Staff in making your money PERFORM for you.

As for Encores -- They're Our Specialty!
PROGRAM
Saturday, January 25, 1991—8:00 p.m.
With Guest Artists: Dumi Maraire and Christian Marclay
Larry Neff, Visual Designer
Jay Coadt, Sound Designer

JUSTINIAN TAMUSUZA
MU KUKO ERY OMUSALAABA (1988)*

HAMZA EL DIN
(Adapted by Tohuo Ueda)

ESCALAY—THE WATER WHEEL (1989)*

FODAY MUSA SUSO
TILIBOYO GUINESE (1990)*

DUMI MARAIRE
MAI NOZIPO (MOTHER NOZIPO) & OTHER WORKS (1990)*
World Premiere with guest artist, Dumi Maraire
INTERMISSION

ISTVAN MARTA
THE GLASSBLOWER'S DREAM (1990)*

JOHN ZORN
THE DEAD MAN (1990)*

JOHN OSWALD
SPECTRE (1990)*

NEW WORK
Music by Kronos Quartet, Christian Marclay and Jay Coadt, and Visual Design by Larry Neff
World Premiere with guest artist, Christian Marclay

Written for Kronos

The composition of Mat Nozipo was made possible by a grant from Meet the Composer/Reader’s Digest Commissioning Program, in partnership with the National Endowment for the Arts and the Lila Wallace-Reader’s Digest Fund, along with a consortium of presenting including Hancher Auditorium.

The New Work was commissioned for the Kronos Quartet by Hancher Auditorium.

The Moving Visions of Bill T. Jones

This interview by John Killacky, director of performing arts at The Walker Art Center in Minneapolis, with Bill T. Jones took place just prior to the premiere in April, 1990 of "The Promised Land," the last section of The Last Supper at Uncle Tom's Cabin. The Promised Land was developed as part of a residency by Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane Co. in Minneapolis. The full work premiered in November, 1990 at The Next Wave Festival at the Brooklyn Academy of Music in New York City and will be performed in its entirety at Hancher Auditorium on February 2, 1991.

Killacky, as co-commissioner of The Last Supper and co-host of the Minneapolis residency, hoped to allow Jones himself to shape the public’s perception of the piece by giving him the opportunity — before the public had seen the work or heard about it in the media — to speak frankly about the ways in which “The Last Supper” reflects the uncertainty of his Christian faith, his anger about homophobia and racism, and his sense of loss after Zane’s death in 1988.

The last three years have not been easy ones for Jones. In addition to the loss of Zane, his partner in life and art, to AIDS-related lymphoma, company member Dominick Acquarena also died. Jones has responded to these tragedies by creating some of his greatest, most personal work, including the tribute to Acquarena, D-Man in the Waters, and a number of works that celebrate Zane’s memory, including Forsythia and Absence. All these works have attempted to translate Jones’ personal grief — and affirmation of life — into universal statements. But never have his emotions been so conspicuous, or his artistic and thematic ambitions so broad, as they are in “The Last Supper.” You can find antecedents to this piece in his earlier work, his themes have always been quite personal,” Killacky says. “It’s the scale of this work that’s such a departure for him, the depth of what he’s trying to get across.”

John Killacky: Bill, let’s begin with the conception of the work. What’s the meaning of the title, Last Supper at Uncle Tom’s Cabin?

Bill T. Jones: The project started out with a whimsical, college title developed by Annie Zane and myself. In January, 1988, we were on a tour, and we were sitting in a hotel room and discussing a number of things. Annie had just had one of those daydreams — a vision of opera singer Jessye Norman on an ice floe. And I think he thought that was very funny. It reminded him of a section in Harriet Beecher Stowe’s book Uncle Tom’s Cabin, in which the character Eliza is jumping from one ice floe to another, from slavery on one shore to freedom on the other shore. He had also been
The human body is our common denominator—and it is the place where we find our ultimate commonality.

JL: How about "Eliza on Ice"?

BTJ: "Eliza on Ice" is the story that is very exciting to me and a bit frightening right now, because I really want it to be about women. It should also be about the impulse to mature and protect, as the character of Eliza does when she's jumping from one ice floe to another. My piece is going to be centered on at least four, if not five, Elizas, one of whom may in fact be a man.

JL: I recently had a discussion with a range of women in Manhattan about this. I feel that gay men, in particular men who have had crises of identity about their sexuality—who are, let's say, effeminate men, or transsexuals, or transvestites—face a dilemma that is similar to the dilemma faced by women, yet is also different. Why a male Eliza should be included remains to be seen, but I do think it seems somehow right for me, in my attempt to integrate the "male nude" part and make it not "nude," and we thought that would be a nice collage title. So it was The Last Supper at Uncle Tom's Cabin Featuring 52 Handsome Nudes.

Arnie died that spring, but not until after getting a commitment from Harvey Lichtenstein that we would do this piece at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. And when Arnie died, I was left with the title and I had to think: was it still a joke to me? Is it a trite, ironic title, what did each part of the title mean? For the last year and a half, I've been exploring that title and its different aspects.

JL: The full work has four sections, correct?

"The Cabin" is an attempt to bring our audience into the book Uncle Tom's Cabin really is. The book is a touchstone, it is the thing that I am reacting to, as many people have. I've been overwhelmed with the number of literary references to the book that you find in contemporary fiction. Most people think they know the work, but they do not in fact.

Iowa City Tennis & Fitness Center
2400 North Dodge • 535-5683
Your first visit is free

So, in "The Cabin," I am attempting to tell the story in an interesting way that will be understood both by very young people and by older, scholarly people, so that we can get on to some understanding of the ramifications of the story as a kind of meditation on liberalism, on hope, and on the philosophy and theology of liberalism and how the two affect each other.

"The Last Supper" is oriented more toward pure movement and will provide the sort of movement-vocabulary underpinning that will propel the rest of the piece.

"The Promised Land" is something that is very, very important to me, because this painting has found its way, which I was, but not as a Christian. Christianity is my mother's religion. But I am now an intense, different type of artist. I'm not the one religion in which I am well-versed. It is the one that is supposed to be answering my questions about life and death, but it does not answer all of my questions. I want to articulate those questions in the piece.

JL: Is Christianity a slave religion? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith when we are without belief, can we live without it?

BTJ: Visuals. "The Last Supper" is something that is very, very important to me, because this painting has found its way, which I was, but not as a Christian. Christianity is my mother's religion. I am not a believer, poor persons. And I think, why does my mother have this Reverence, this painting on her wall, painted on velvet? Does she know what it took, politically and otherwise, for that work to be in her home as a so-called sacred icon? I distrust the process that put that painting there, and distrust the slickness of a work that she would accept it so readily.

Another source from which I've been working—and I'm reluctant to talk more about this until we get something more solid—is the Leitl Jones' play The Dutchman, a work that I read back during the Sixties and was shocked by. At that time, I was not at all into the Black Nationalist rhetoric of separation, and this venting of anger was a way to do the alternative culture of peace and acceptance and love, and "we are not your brothers" and "let's avoid our differences."

So now I now come back to it as a grown man, and I find the writing extremely provocative. Recently in the Times, I read that "The Promised Land" was premiered, I used a segment of the play. And one of my characters, the White man who is, I think, a middle-class background and who is a good 11 years younger than I am, if he doesn't go more—couldn't see the relevance of the language, of the anger. I was trying to bring it back into the play between a black man and a white woman; and then we see Leitl Jones' treatment of it 100 years later. What I want to do is to set up a kind of dialogue between those two women, so that the viewers can ask themselves what happened during the time in between.

JL: During the Minneapolis residency, you were also working...
The human body is our common denominator—and it is the place where we find our ultimate commonality.

Jk: How about "Eliza on Ice"?

Btj: "Eliza on Ice" is the story that is very exciting to me and a bit frightening right now, because I really want it to be about women. It should be about the impulse to murture and protect, as the character of Eliza does when she’s jumping from one ice floe to another. My piece is going to be centered on at least four, if not five, Elizas, one of whom may in fact be a man.

I recently had a discussion with a woman in Manhattan about this. I feel that gay men, in particular men who have had crises of identity about their sexuality—who are, let’s say, effeminate men, or transsexuals, or transfeminists—face a dilemma that is similar to the dilemma faced by women, yet is also different. Why a male Eliza should be included remains to be seen, but I do think it seems somehow right for me, in my attempt to integrate the nontraditional and the persecuted, and it seems right in the context of making leap to freedom, as Eliza does.

"The Last Supper" is oriented more toward pure movement and will provide the sort of movement-vocabulary underpinning that will propel the rest of the piece.

What does it mean to have faith? When we are without belief, can we live without it?

Btj: Visualy, "The Last Supper" is something that is very, very important to me, because this paintings has found its way into a part of me, which was, but not as a Christian. Christianity is my mother’s religion, and I am having an intense dialogue with it right now. It is the religion in which I am well versed. It is the one that is supposed to be an answer to my questions about life and death, but it does not answer all of my questions. I want to articulate those questions in the piece. Is Christianity a slave religion? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith? What does it mean to have faith?"
with one of Martin Luther King’s speeches.

BJT: I have used the “I Have a Dream” speech, and I have inverted all the language, turned it around so that it’s backwards. Conceptually, it’s like looking into a mirror—or through a glass darkly, if you will—so that this theology of liberation is reversed, as I feel the effects of affirmative action have been reversed in recent years. It becomes still a stirring, emotional cry, but one that is illogical and frightening, even. And I have directed the actors to deliver it as if there are two people speaking—in other words, we are now a split mind.

And they’re saying, there was once a charismatic leader called Martin Luther King who incorporated all the aspirations of about a hundred years of liberation and struggle. And the world listened intently, and things were charged, and he was given a Nobel Prize. But we look now, and we see that many of these rights we’ve obtained are being rolled back, and that, in fact, King himself might be dismayed and even angry to see what began as a beautiful statement about hope now is full of distrust and fear.

I’m not quite sure right now how that speech will fit into the whole piece, since the piece is being developed section by section.

JK: How have you and the company been developing the four sections? You spent about a month with us in Minneapolis, where do you go next?

BJT: As we speak now (early June), I’m about to go off to England, and I’ll be working with the company there on the “Supper” section, which is being commissioned by Hancher Auditorium. This is an opportunity for me to get out of the States, to spend time with the company in the English countryside and concentrate on vocabulary.

The “Eliza on the Ice” section will be developed in part at Arts Awareness, a residency in the Catskills that we’ve been offered. Then, later, when we are in residence at Jacob’s Pillow, we will put the whole piece together. “The Promised Land,” which was originally commissioned by the Walker Art Center and Northrop Auditorium (at the University of Minnesota) in Minneapolis, will be revised during our final residency at the Brooklyn Academy of Music from the last three weeks of October until we open in November at the BAM Opera House.

UCLA and Cal Performances in Berkeley have commissioned the “Cabin” section, and they are in fact making it possible for us to use their shops to develop the sets and costumes. This will be one of the most theatrical sections of the whole piece, the section that essentially tells the story. And the University of Arizona is also helping us develop “Eliza on the Ice.”

JK: That’s a rather extensive list of co-commissioners.

BJT: This is one of the big opportunities for me—it’s the first time I’ve ever had so many co-commissioners, and so many varied players involved in a piece that I am developing.

But I expect that, as with most projects, we will lose money. We always do—it’s the nature of the arts in this country. However, I am more than pleased that we have been able to find places like the Walker Art Center and Northrop Auditorium, who contacted the Andy Warhol Foundation to make it possible to begin making the sets. And it has been wonderful to find a consortium of dance companies and community groups that would volunteer their time and personnel, at their own expense, to help develop a work. Hancher Auditorium has made it possible for me to take the company where I would like to take them, and to work in the way I like to work. We all know that things always cost much more than we think they’re going to, but this is one of the most well-funded projects I have ever embarked upon.

JK: You and your co-commissioners have also received generous funding from a multitude of sources, including the NEA. You’ve also gotten support from several regional foundations.

BJT: I’m not at all so arrogant as to think that, well, I just deserve it. Maybe I should be. Does the work deserve it? What is there about the work that has captured the imagination of these people? I lie awake at night and think about that. Maybe the times are such that people are looking for a work that attempts to deal with issues like these, and that does so in the realm of contemporary art.

This is what I think I’m getting—a message of affirmation, and of hope, from all these presenters and funders that we’ve mentioned. I have the same hope for the audiences: that they will be able to present a sophisticated, vital, and aesthetic experience that has guts and a voice—and that we’ll be asking very hard questions about the world we live in, not an idealized or transcendental world.

NEW PIONEER COOP

Iowa City’s Unique Grocery
For the Freshest,
Best-Tasting Food
You Can Buy
Open to Everyone
9 a.m.—9 p.m. Every Day
22 S. Van Buren 338-9441

This article was reprinted, with permision, from Inside Arts.
September 1990.

Opening-night success doesn’t begin on opening night. Every great performance is the result of years of hard work, years of dedication. At American Eagle®, we’ve seen how far that kind of dedication can go. Day after day, we join American Airlines® in carrying thousands of passengers to more than 250 destinations worldwide. And flight after flight, we strive to meet the industry’s highest standards.

It means pushing ourselves a little farther every day. But no one ever said performing would be easy. The best just make it look that way. American Eagle® is a registered service mark of American Airlines, Inc., and is American’s regional airline associate.
with one of Martin Luther King's speeches.

BJ: I have used the "I Have a Dream" speech, and I have inverted all the language, turned it around so that it's backwards. Conceptually, it's like looking into a mirror—or through a glass darkly, if you will—so that this theology of liberation is reversed, as I feel the efforts of affirmative action have been reversed in recent years. It becomes still a stirring, emotional cry, but one that is illogical and frightening, even. And I have directed the actors to deliver it as if there are two people speaking—in other words, we are now a split mind.

And they're saying, there was once a charismatic leader called Martin Luther King who incorporated all the aspirations of about a hundred years of liberation and struggle. And the world listened intently, and things were changed, and he was given a Nobel Prize. But we look now, and we see that many of those rights we've obtained are being rolled back, and that, in fact, King himself might be dismayed and even angry to see what began as a beautiful statement about hope now is full of distrust and fear.

I'm not quite sure right now how that speech will fit into the whole piece, since the piece is being developed section by section.

JK: How have you and the company been developing the four sections? You spent about a month with us in Minneapolis, where do you go next?

BJ: As we speak now (early June), I'm about to go off to England, and I'll be working with the company there on the "Super" section, which is being commissioned by Hancher Auditorium. This is an opportunity for me to get out of the States, to spend time with the company in the English countryside and concentrate on vocabulary.

The "Eliza on the Ice" section will be developed in part at Arts Awareness, a residency in the Catskills that we've been offered. Then, later, when we are in residence at Jacob's Pillow, we will put the whole piece together. "The Promised Land," which was originally commissioned by the Walker Art Center and Northrop Auditorium (at the University of Minnesota) in Minneapolis, will be revised during our final residency at the Brooklyn Academy of Music from the last three weeks of October until we open in November at the BAM Opera House.

UCLA and Cal Performances in Berkeley have commissioned the "Cabin" section, and they are in fact making it possible for us to use their shops to develop the sets and costumes. This will be one of the most theatrical sections of the whole piece, the section that essentially tells the story. And the University of Arizona is also helping us develop "Eliza on the Ice."

JK: That's a rather extensive list of co-commissioners.

BJ: This is one of the big opportunities for me—it's the first time I've ever had so many co-commissioners, and so many varied players involved in a piece that I am developing.

But I expect that, as with most projects, we will lose money. We always do—it's the nature of the arts in this country. However, I am more than pleased that we have been able to find places like the Walker Art Center and Northrop Auditorium, who contacted the Andy Warhol Foundation to make it possible to begin making the sets. And it has been wonderful to find a consortium of dance companies and community groups that would volunteer their time and personnel, at their own expense, to help develop a work. Hancher Auditorium has made it possible for me to take the company where I would like to take them, and to work in the way I like to work. We all know that things always cost much more than we think they're going to, but this is one of the most well-funded projects I have ever embarked upon.

JK: You and your co-commissioners have also received generous funding from a multitude of sources, including the NEA. You've also gotten support from several regional foundations.

BJ: I'm not at all so arrogant as to think that, well, I just deserve it. Maybe I should be. Does the work deserve it? What is there about the work that has captured the imaginations of these people? I lie awake at night and think about that. Maybe the times are such that people are looking for a work that attempts to deal with issues like these, and that does so in the realm of contemporary art.

This is what I think I'm getting—a message of affirmation, and of hope; from all these presenters and funders that we've mentioned. I have the same hope for the audiences: that we'll be able to present a sophisticated, vital, and aesthetic experience that has guts and a voice—

Opening-night success doesn't begin on opening night. Every great performance is the result of years of hard work, years of dedication. At American Eagle®, we've seen how far that kind of dedication can go. Day after day, we join American Airlines® in carrying thousands of passengers to more than 250 destinations worldwide. And flight after flight, we strive to meet the industry's highest standards.

It means pushing ourselves a little farther every day. But no one ever said performing would be easy. The best just make it look that way. American Eagle® is a registered service mark of American Airlines, Inc., and is American's regional airline associate.
Iowa Center for the Arts

CALENDAR

Performance time is 8:00 p.m., except as noted. For ticketed events, tickets are available from the Hancher Box Office, except as noted. Ticket price listings are current as of the print deadline and are subject to change. Checks the box office for current information.

MUSEUM OF ART EXHIBITIONS

November 3-April 21
Art from the Wilderness

MUSIC, THEATRE, AND DANCE

■ January 27
Marc-André Hamelin, piano
Clapp Recital Hall

■ January 28
Sunday Honor Choir
7 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

■ January 30
Wednesday All-City Choral Festival
7:30 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

University Symphony Orchestra
Clapp Recital Hall

■ January 31
Thursday Collegiate String Quartet
Youth $8.00/7.00
UI students $12.80/$11.20
Nonstudents $16.00/$14.00
Hancher Auditorium
(Performance by the members of the quartet, Hancher greenroom)

■ February 2
Saturday Bill T. Jones/Arnie Zane and Co.
Last Supper at Uncle Tom’s Cabin
Youth $10.00/9.00
UI students and senior citizens $16.00/14.00
Nonstudents $20.00/18.00
Hancher Auditorium

■ February 4
Monday Billy Taylor Trio
Lecture/Demonstration
1:50 p.m.
Harper Hall
Music Building

Hancher Auditorium Information

Box Office: Open from 11:00 a.m. to 5:50 p.m. Monday through Friday, 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Saturday, and 1:00 to 3:00 p.m. Sunday. On nights of performances, the box office remains open until 9:00 p.m. If a performance falls on a Saturday or Sunday, box office hours are 1:00 to 9:00 p.m.
Telephone: 393-335-1160, or toll-free in Iowa 1-800-HANCHER
Seating Policy: To avoid disrupting the performance, latecomers will be directed to the observation rooms and will be seated during an appropriate break in the performance, at the discretion of the management. If you must leave during a performance and later wish to re-enter the auditorium, an usher will escort you to an observation booth until an interval or conclusion of the performance.

Greenroom: The greenroom, located on the river side of the lobby, is the site of discussions preceding many events and is also a convenient place to meet artists following a performance. Ask an usher or check the lobby availability for information.

Coughing and Electronic Wrist Watchers: The audience’s awareness amplifies the sounds of coughing and other noises. Please turn off your electronic devices during performances. The use of a handkerchief helps to muffle a cough or sneeze, and cough drops are available from the ushers. If coughing persists, you may wish to return to the lobby, where an usher can direct you to one of the soundproof observation rooms. Smoking: Smoking is not permitted in the auditorium. If you wish to smoke during intermissions, you may do so only in the designated areas of the cafe and of the west end of the lobby.

Cameras and Tape Recorders: In compliance with copyright laws and contractual arrangements with artists, photographs and recordings may not be made during performances. Please check your cameras and tape recorders with the house manager or an usher.

Restrooms and Drinking Fountains: Located on either side of the lobby and mezzanine.

A Unique, New Performance Nightly.

Now that you’ve found your seat, the lights are dimmed and the orchestra is poised for its cue. Spend these last few moments considering another performance . . . the Holiday Inn Iowa City.

Center Stage: Downtown’s only international star.

The “Holiday Inn” in our name is recognized worldwide, but we’re also applauded for our uniquely “Iowan” environment. Just a block from the U of I campus, major medical facilities, major corporations, and major figures. And, more importantly, our cast is committed to your satisfaction.

We’ve just finished our fine tuning.

At the Holiday Inn Iowa City, we’ve chosen to refresh our commitments to excellence by making some significant changes. Now when you stay with us, you’ll enjoy all the newly enhanced accommodations, including a soundproof addition, with 100-foot view of the sprawling pedestrian mall. Plus new lobby carpeting and many other cosmetic appointments. What do it mean? Easing your business leisure guest and our new look? “Impressive.”

A new culinary experience.

If unique dining is your idea of a fine art, meet the man who’s been instrumental to our success. Executive Chef David Muthnek adds his own flavor and style to our newly created restaurant concept. Best of all, the Holiday Inn Iowa City’s Five Food and Spirits.

For board meetings or wedding receptions, we’ve got what it takes to earn you a standing ovation.

A new holiday inn.

Take a break from the rat race of Christmas . . . Iowa City’s hottest holiday retreat, gift shop, special events, and nightly specials. Plus, Happy Hour that always wins rave reviews. Featuring free DJ and dance tunes, Tuesday-Saturday from 6:00 p.m. to close.

Leaves your big production in us.

Hundreds of meeting planners already rely on us for the excellence and efficiency of their conferences. From the support of your Personal Events Coordinator to professional A/V support, you’re guaranteed a flawless (and successful) performance.

Amenities? Our bring down the house.

Free cookies of USA Today, complimentary coffee in the lobby and unlimited use of our pool, whirlpool, sauna, and steam rooms. Extra? Noy way! We’re doing part of everything that makes us Iowa City’s best.

We’d rather skip the curtain calls and have you call us — at (319) 337-4058.

Holiday Inn
Iowa City
210 S. Dubuque Street
Iowa City 52240
Iowa Center for the Arts

CALENDAR

November 3-April 21
Art from the Wilderness

MUSEUM OF ART EXHIBITIONS

November 3-April 21
Art from the Wilderness

MUSIC, THEATRE, AND DANCE

■ January 27 Tuesday
Marc-André Hamelin, piano
Clapp Recital Hall

■ January 28 Wednesday
All-City Choral Festival
7:30 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

University Symphony Orchestra
Clapp Recital Hall

■ January 31 Thursday
Collegiate String Quartet
Youth $8/$7.00
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 2 Saturday
Bill T Jones/Arielle Zane and Co.
Last Supper at Uncle Tom’s Cabin
Youth $10/$9.00
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 4 Monday
Billy Taylor Trio
Lecture/Demonstration
1:30 p.m.
Harper Hall

City High Orchestra
7:50 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 5 Tuesday
Billy Taylor Trio
Ul students $18.00/$16.40/$14.80
Nonstudents $22.50/$20.50/$18.50
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 6 Wednesday
West High Concert and Symphonic Bands
7:50 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 7 Thursday
Ul students, 18 and under, and senior citizens $6.00
Nonstudents $11.50
Mabel Theatre

■ February 8 Friday
Collegiate Musica
Clapp Recital Hall

Paul Dresher Ensemble
Pioneer
Youth $10.00/$9.00
Ul students and senior citizens $16.00/$14.40
Nonstudents $20.00/$18.00
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 9 Saturday
Paul Dresher Ensemble
Pioneer
Youth $10.00/$9.00
Ul students and senior citizens $16.00/$14.40
Nonstudents $20.00/$18.00
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 10 Sunday
Prelue School Concert
3 p.m.
Clapp Recital Hall

Scott McCoy, tenor
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 12 Tuesday
Leontyne Price
Ul students $24.00/$22.40/$20.00
Nonstudents $30.00/$28.00/$26.00
Clapp Recital Hall

■ February 13 Wednesday
Medea
Ul students, 18 and under, and senior citizens $8.00
Nonstudents $11.50
Mabel Theatre

Hancher Auditorium Information

Box Office: Open from 11:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m.
Monday through Friday, 11:00 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. Saturday, and 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.
Sunday. On nights of performances, the box office remains open until 9:00 p.m.
If a performance lasts past 5:30 p.m., box office hours are 11:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.
Telephone: 319-335-1160, or toll-free in Iowa 1-880-HANCHER

Seating Policy: To avoid disrupting the performance, latecomers will be directed to the observation rooms and will be seated during an appropriate break in the performance, at the discretion of the management. If you must leave during a performance and wish to re-enter the auditorium, an usher will escort you to an observation booth, or an intermission or the conclusion of the performance.

Greenroom: The greenroom, located on the river side of the lobby, is the site of discussions preceding many events and is also a convenient place to meet artists following a performance. Ask an usher or check the lobby availability for the availability of performers.

Coughing and Electronic Watches: The auditorium's acoustics amplify the sounds of coughing and other noises. Please turn off your electronic watches and turn away from the audience. A member of the housekeeping staff will help to muffle coughs or sneezes, and cough drops are available from the usher. If you cough persistently, you may wish to return to the lobby, where an usher can direct you to one of the soundproof observation rooms.

Smoking: Smoking is not permitted in the auditorium. If you wish to smoke during intermissions, you may do so only in the designated areas of the cafe and of the west end of the lobby.

Cameras and Tape Recorders: In compliance with copyright laws and contractual arrangements, photographs and recordings may not be made during performances. Please check our cameras and tape recorders with the house manager or an usher.

Restrooms and Drinking Fountains: Located on either side of the lobby and mezzanine.
OUR SOCIAL REGISTER IS SECOND TO NONE

M.C. GINSBERG JEWELERS IS THE SOURCE FOR EXTRAORDINARY GIFTS TO CREATE
A HOME OF DISTINCTION.
WE OFFER A UNIQUE SELECTION OF
CARTIER, LALIQUE, GINORI, BERNARDAUD,
ALESSI, SWID POWELL,
Tiffany & Co.,
& HAVILAND DE PARIS,
INCLUDING EXCEPTIONAL OBJECTS
THAT ARE FOUND NOWHERE ELSE.
BEGIN WITH THE RIGHT CHOICES.

M.C. GINSBERG JEWELERS, INC.
110 EAST WASHINGTON STREET
IOWA CITY, IOWA 52240
319 • 351 • 1730 • 800 • 373 • 1732
FAX 319 • 351 • 0855
PRIVATE APPOINTMENTS AVAILABLE