HOW LONG IS A DAY?

From Genesis to the Riddle of the Sphinx to the present time, a day has meant something more to us than the distance between sunrise and sunset. Because most of us rise in the morning and lie down in the evening, the day is a convenient metaphor for all the days of our lives. The totality of the day includes both the light—shining on what we can see and know and feel—and the dark—hiding from us what we can’t see, can’t know, can’t feel. This work centers on what happens in the dark, and after.

The text for the day is crowdsourced from the internet, searching the ways that ordinary people spend their days, as they rise, as they live, and as they fall. The text is arranged almost like a prism, with many conflicting facets of each action described and recounted from different vantage points, as we proceed from wakefulness to sleep.

In world to come, Maya and her voice become separated from each other, and they struggle to reunite in a post-apocalyptic spiritual environment. world to come is a kind of prayer—introspective and highly personal. It is a meditation on hope and hopelessness, asking fundamental questions about the death and life of the soul.

The projection environment Batsry created for world to come is a world in transformation, in the process of becoming. Composed of images of water, this “creation scene” evokes water as a dominant element in creation myths.

DAVID LANG WRITES:

the day was written for my friend and longtime collaborator Maya Beiser, as a kind of introduction to my previous piece for her, world to come.

world to come imagines the journey of the soul when it is separated from the body in death, as they struggle to find each other again. For the day I wanted to start earlier in the journey, exploring the ways we might review our lives, as they are running away from us. I wondered what I might discover if I cataloged the moments in our lives that we remember best, that seem like highlights in our memory of them. I wanted the act of remembering to be as widespread as possible, so I imagined asking 300 very different people the question “What was the most important day in your life?” Every phrase that answers this I treated as a personal statement from someone, somewhere, about a moment that was so significant it felt worth holding onto. I hoped that assembling them together, into a single narrative, would help us feel the weight of a life, as it is being lived.

IRIT BATSRY WRITES:

Maya, playing inside this video environment in flux, appears at the same time to be surrounded by it and to generate it with the sounds of her cello.

Water here is raw matter, a physical element and a metaphor. Like water, video signal is a flow. It carries, it changes. It can’t be grasped. Like memory.

You can’t bathe in the same river twice.

You can’t see an image nor hear a sound twice, not in the same way.
ABOUT MAYA BEISER

Cellist Maya Beiser defies categories. Passionately forging a career path through uncharted territories, she has captivated audiences worldwide with her virtuosity, eclectic repertoire, and relentless quest to redefine her instrument’s boundaries. The Boston Globe declares, “With virtuoso chops, rock-star charisma, and an appetite for pushing her instrument to the edge of avant-garde adventurousness, Maya Beiser is the post-modern diva of the cello,” while Rolling Stone calls her a “cello rock star.”

Raised in the Galilee Mountains in Israel, surrounded by the music and rituals of Jews, Muslims, and Christians, while studying classical cello repertoire, Maya has dedicated her work to reinventing solo cello performance in the mainstream classical arena. A featured performer on the world’s most prestigious stages including Lincoln Center, Carnegie Hall, Kennedy Center, London’s South Bank Centre, Sydney Opera House, Beijing Festival, Big Ears festival, and the Barbican’s Sound Unbound, she has collaborated with a wide range of artists across many disciplines, including Brian Eno, Philip Glass, Shirin Neshat, Steve Reich, David Lang, Tan Dun, Robert Woodruff, Bill Morrison, Evan Ziporyn, and Osvaldo Golijov, among many others.

Maya’s critically acclaimed multimedia productions world to come, Almost Human, Provenance, Elsewhere: A Cello Opera, and All Vows have consistently been chosen for top critics’ “Best Of The Year” lists. All Vows premiered at the Yerba Buena Center for the Arts in 2014 and has since been on tour in the U.S. including performances in Washington, DC; Dallas; Houston; Chicago; and New York. Other recent and upcoming highlights include featured solo performances as part of the Barbican’s Sound Unbound festival in London; two new cello concerti premieres, Mohammed Fairouz’s cello concerto with the Detroit Symphony and Mark Anthony Turnage's cello concerto with the Swedish Chamber Orchestra; as well as two multimedia solo production collaborations with David Lang and Julia Wolfe.

Highlights of Maya’s tours include performances at the Ravinia Festival in Chicago, Celebrity Series in Boston, Ojai Music Festival, International Festival of Arts and Ideas in New Haven, and major venues and festivals in Barcelona, Paris, Amsterdam, Torino, Tokyo, Taipei, Athens, Mexico City, and Bogota. She has appeared with many of the world’s top orchestras performing new works for the cello including the St. Paul Chamber Orchestra, Montreal Symphony, BBC Concert Orchestra, Boston Pops, Sydney Symphony, Seattle Symphony, Nashville Symphony, China Philharmonic, and Shanghai Philharmonic, among many others.

Maya’s vast discography includes ten solo albums and many studio recordings and film music collaborations. Her latest album, TranceClassical, released July 2016, debuted at No. 1 on the Apple Music classical chart. Her 2010 album Provenance topped the classical and world music charts on both Amazon and iTunes, and her album Time Loops was selected among NPR’s top 10 recordings of 2012. Her album Uncovered, a collection of re-imagined and re-contextualized classic rock masterpieces, made the top 10 on the Billboard Classical Chart.

Maya Beiser is a 2015 United States Artists (USA) Distinguished Fellow in Music and a 2017 Mellon Distinguished Visiting Artist at MIT Center for Art, Science & Technology. Invited to present at the prestigious TED main stage in Long Beach, CA, Maya’s 2011 TEDtalk has been watched by close to one-million people and translated to 32 languages. In 2013, she was a featured guest alongside such luminaries as Yoko Ono, Marina Abramović, and Isabella Rossellini at ICASTICA, a festival celebrating women working in artistic fields in Arezzo, Italy. ABOUT DAVID LANG

“With his winning of the Pulitzer Prize for the little match girl passion (one of the most original and moving scores of recent years), Lang, once a postminimalist enfant terrible, has solidified his standing as an American master.” — The New Yorker

Lang’s simple song #3, written as part of his score for Paolo Sorrentino’s acclaimed film Youth, received many awards nominations in 2016, including the Academy Award and Golden Globe.

His the little match girl passion won the 2008 Pulitzer Prize in music. Based on a fable by Hans Christian Andersen and Lang’s own rewriting of the libretto to Bach’s St. Matthew’s Passion, the recording of the piece was awarded a 2010 Grammy Award for Best Small Ensemble Performance. Lang has also been the recipient of the Rome Prize, Le Chevalier des Arts et des Lettres, and Musical America’s 2013 Composer of the Year.
