The Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra (JLCO), comprising 15 of the finest jazz soloists and ensemble players today, has been the Jazz at Lincoln Center resident orchestra since 1988. Featured in all aspects of Jazz at Lincoln Center’s programming, this remarkably versatile orchestra performs and leads educational events in New York, across the U.S., and around the globe; in concert halls, dance venues, jazz clubs, and public parks; and with symphony orchestras, ballet troupes, local students, and an ever-expanding roster of guest artists.

Education is a major part of Jazz at Lincoln Center’s mission; its educational activities are coordinated with concert and Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra tour programming. Hosted by bassist Christian McBride, the program features hand-picked performances from across the country, woven with the colorful stories of the artists behind them. Jazz Night in America and Jazz at Lincoln Center’s radio archive can be found at jazz.org/radio.

Over the last few years, the JLCO has performed collaborations with many of the world’s leading symphony orchestras, including the New York Philharmonic; the Russian National Orchestra; the Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra; the Boston, Chicago, and London Symphony orchestras; the Orchestra Experimentale in São Paolo, Brazil; and others. In 2006, the JLCO collaborated with Ghanaian drum collective Odadaa!, led by Yacub Addy, to perform Congo Square, a composition Mr. Marsalis and Mr. Addy co-wrote and dedicated to Mr. Marsalis’s native New Orleans. The JLCO performed Marsalis’s symphony, Swing Symphony, with the Berliner Philharmoniker in Berlin and with the New York Philharmonic in New York City in 2010 and with the Los Angeles Philharmonic in Los Angeles in 2011. Swing Symphony is a co-commission by the New York Philharmonic, Berlin Philharmonic, Los Angeles Philharmonic, and The Barbican Centre.

The JLCO has also been featured in several education and performance residencies in the last few years, including those in Vienne, France; Perugia, Italy; Prague, Czech Republic; London, England; Lucerne, Switzerland; Berlin, Germany; São Paulo, Brazil; Yokohama, Japan; and others.

Jazz at Lincoln Center’s Higher Ground Benefit Concert raised funds for the Higher Ground Relief Fund that was established by Jazz at Lincoln Center and was administered through the Baton Rouge Area Foundation to benefit the musicians, music industry-related enterprises, and other individuals and entities from the areas in Greater New Orleans who were impacted by Hurricane Katrina, and to provide other general hurricane relief. The band is also featured on the Higher Ground Benefit Concert CD that was released on Blue Note Records following the concert. TED NASH (Alto and Soprano Saxophones, Flute, Clarinet) enjoys an extraordinary career as a performer, conductor, composer, arranger, and educator. Born in Los Angeles into a musical family (his father, Dick Nash, and uncle, the late Ted Nash, were both well-known jazz and studio musicians), Nash blossomed early, a “young lion” before the term became marketing vernacular. Nash has that uncanny ability to mix freedom with accessibility, blues with intellect, and risk-taking with clarity. His group Odeon has often been cited as a creative focus of jazz. Many of Nash’s recordings have received critical acclaim, and have appeared on the “best-of” lists in the New York Times, the New Yorker, the Village Voice, and the Boston Globe. His recordings, The Mancini Project and Sidewalk Meeting, have been placed on several “best-of-decade” lists. His album Portrait in Seven Shades was recorded by the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra and was released in 2010. The album is the first composition released by the JLCO featuring original music by a band member other than bandleader Wynton Marsalis. Nash’s latest album, Chakra, was released in 2013. His most recent big band recording, Presidential Suite: Eight Variations on Freedom, won the 2017 Best Large Jazz Ensemble Album Grammy Award. The album includes “Spoken at Midnight,” which won the 2017 Best Instrumental Composition Grammy Award. Nash’s arrangement of “We Three Kings,” featured on the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra with Wynton Marsalis’ Big Band Holidays album, was nominated for the 2017 Best Instrumental or A Cappella Arrangement Grammy Award.

It didn’t take him long to become one of Chicago’s busiest piano players. Working a lot in the Chicago scene, Nimmer decided to leave school and make the big move to New York City where he immediately emerged in the New York scene. A year after moving to New York City, he became a member of the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra and the Wynton Marsalis Quintet. MARCUS PRINTUP (Music Director, Trumpet) was born and raised in Conyers, Georgia. His first musical experiences were hearing the fiery gospel music his parents sang in church. While attending the University of North Florida on a music scholarship, he won the International Trumpet Guild Jazz Trumpet competition. In 1991, Printup’s life changed when he met his mentor, the great pianist Marcus Roberts, who introduced him to Wynton Marsalis. This led to Printup’s induction into the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra in 1993. Printup has recorded with Betty Carter, Dianne Reeves, Eric Reed, Madeleine Peyroux, Ted Nash, Cyrus Chestnut, Wycliffe Gordon, and Roberts, among others. He has recorded several records as a leader: Song for the Beautiful Woman, Unveiled, Hub Songs, Nocturnal Traces, The New Boogaloo, Peace in the Abstract, Bird of Paradise, London Lullaby, Ballads All Night, A Time for Love, and his most recent, Homage (2012) and Desire (2013) featuring Riza Printup on the harp. He made a big screen appearance in the 1999 movie Playing by Heart and recorded on the film’s soundtrack. Education is important to Printup, as he is an in-demand clinician teaching middle schools, high schools, and colleges across the U.S. He teaches privately at the prestigious Mannes New School of Music. August 22 has been declared “Marcus Printup Day” in his hometown of Conyers, Georgia.

Kenny Rampton (Trumpet) joined the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra in 2010. In addition to performing in the JLCO, Rampton leads his own groups. He released his debut solo CD Moon Over Babylon in 2013. He is also the trumpet voice for the popular PBS TV series Sesame Street. In the summer of 2010, Rampton performed with The Scottish National Jazz Orchestra at the Edinburgh International Festival, and was the featured soloist on the Miles Davis/Gil Evans classic version of Porgy and Bess. Rampton has been a regular member of The Mingus Big Band/Orchestra/Dynasty, Mingus Epitaph (under the direction of Gunther Schuller), George Gruntz’s Concert Jazz Band, Chico O’Farrill's Afro-Cuban Jazz Orchestra, Bebo Valdez’s Latin Jazz All-Stars, and The Manhattan Jazz Orchestra. He spent much of the 1990s touring the world with The Ray Charles Orchestra, The Jimmy McGriff Quartet, legendary jazz drummer Panama Francis (and the Savoy Sultans), as well as jazz greats Jon Hendricks, Lionel Hampton, and Illinois Jacquet. As a sideman, Rampton has also performed with Dr. John, Christian McBride, The Maria Schneider Orchestra, Charles Earland, Geoff Keezer, and a host of others. Some of Rampton’s Broadway credits include Anything Goes, Finian’s Rainbow, The Wiz, Gentlemen Prefer Blondes, Young Frankenstein, and The Color Purple.

Denzal Sinclaire (Vocals) is one of Canada’s most popular jazz vocalists and is ranked among the finest jazz singers of his generation. A graduate of McGill University’s Jazz Performance program, he possesses that rare ability to instantly achieve a profound emotional interaction with his audience. Sinclaire is a Juno Award nominee, a recipient of the 2004 National Jazz Award for “Best Album,” four-time consecutive recipient of Jazz Report Magazine Award for Male Jazz Vocalist, and 2007 Choc Jazzman Award (France). His admirers include Grammy Award–winning artists Diana Krall, the Jazz at Lincoln Center Orchestra with Wynton Marsalis, Dianne Reeves, Michael Feinstein, and Michael Bublé, as well as growing legions of jazz fans in his native Canada and abroad. He has graced the stages of concert halls and festivals around the world and has appeared on TV shows including Canada’s Bravo!TV, Canada AM, Nashville Now, and Ireland’s The Late Late Show. As a former member of soul artist Jamie Lidell’s band, he has appeared on Late Night with Conan O’ Brien, Jimmy Kimmel Live!, and Manu Katché’s show One Shot Not (France). Equally at home in the theatre, film, and television arenas, Sinclaire has delighted audiences with his critically acclaimed performance in Unforgettable, based on the life and music of Nat “King” Cole; Tapestry: The Music of Carole King; and William Saroyan’s The Time of Your Life. His TV and film credits include the new Battlestar Galactica and Being Julia. A pivotal role for Sinclaire was his collaboration with guitarist/composer Bill Coon, with whom he performed for 15 years to rave reviews in musical settings ranging from duo to symphony orchestras, including live radio, television, and studio recordings. In 1994, they recorded an album of duets and, in 1996, recorded the first in-studio concert for Canada’s BRAVO!TV. César Pelli (1926–2019)
Hancher architect and friend

César Pelli was a brilliant architect, and it was truly an honor to have him design the current Hancher Auditorium. We were even more honored to call him our friend.

That friendship began immediately after Pelli Clark Pelli Architects was selected to design a new Hancher Auditorium following the destruction of the original building by the flooding of 2008. César felt a personal connection to Hancher’s work, and he made sure to connect with members of the staff and the University of Iowa community to ensure his ideas honored Hancher’s past and elevate its future. At his firm’s offices in New Haven, Connecticut, he devoted an entire room to the project, and he was always happy to share his thoughts about the building with visitors.

César was delighted by the beautiful setting—often commenting that it was the most gorgeous site for which he had designed a building—and he was committed to making the most of the space. He brought the indoors and the outdoors together in the lobby spaces and rehearsal room and designed an exceptional performance space.

His joy for the project was palpable from beginning to end. He came to Iowa City for the major milestones of the project, including our Site Ceremony connecting the original Hancher to the new, our Leave Your Mark beam signing (after which he joined hundreds of construction workers on the as-yet-unfinished stage for lunch), and our Gala Opening. On opening night, César took the stage with Hancher Executive Director Chuck Swanson to launch a new era for Hancher. We’ll always remember his words that night: “Hancher was built with love.”

We are saddened to lose our friend. We are blessed to have the opportunity to serve our campus and community in a building that will always stand as a tribute to César.

The Vision for Hancher Auditorium: Inauguration toward a Different Future

This is the second in a series of essays about Virgil Hancher and his vision for the arts in general, and Hancher Auditorium in particular, at the University of Iowa. The essays will appear in playbills throughout this season and will be available on the Hancher website, as well.

By Daniel Boscaljon

Virgil Hancher was inaugurated as president of the State University of Iowa on May 24, 1941, taking over the role from a retiring Eugene Gilmore. The weather that day was “fair and warmer” for the general public and over 280 delegates from educational institutions around the country. The Daily Iowan’s coverage of the event took more space than stories about the war—the British gains in the Battle of Crete and a discussion of ways to defeat the fascist forces that took the form of Nazism, although coverage of the inauguration was contextualized by speakers demanding—and also decrying—U.S. entry into WWII.

The threat of fascism and violence seemingly influenced the program for Hancher’s inauguration as well. Rather than business as usual, the inauguration was preceded and framed by an education conference featuring three keynote addresses anchored on the theme “Education for the Future.” The concern uniting the speakers was the role that education could play toward a more thoughtful culture and community. The presence of Hancher Auditorium seems to address the concerns and challenges offered by the invited speakers.

Edwin R. Embree looked at the strengths of the State University of Iowa and discussed the need to train humanologists:

Upon the fine foundations of your Institute of Child Research, your experimental education, your already notable researches in psychology and social sciences, I urge you to build a program devoted to the study of man and his society. Leave to others the triumphs in natural science and mechanical invention and concentrate on the science of man.

Embree’s comments reflect an emphasis on “experimental education” and the thought that tax-supported institutions should not duplicate services to its students. This legislative philosophy would consume much of Hancher’s time in office during his tenure in an effort to prove how the offerings of SUI (now the University of Iowa) were unique. As an example: because UNI was already using resources to train teachers, Iowa’s education program emphasized educational theory.

The meaning of this potential at Iowa was set even more clearly in the other inaugural speech, offered by Lee Sieg, the then president of the University of Washington Seattle (and Hancher’s freshman physics instructor during his undergraduate years):

I do believe that our curricula should continue those topics that can serve humanity. We institutions of higher learning owe that to the public which supports us. Education should not be selfish...The well-trained engineer can help humanity by designing a new type of dam; but the poet can equally serve his fellows by bringing beauty into their lives.

...but the whole university, from the youngest freshman to the senior professor, must be shot through with faith in creative thinking, else the university shall cease at once. There may have been a time, indeed there was, when universities were solely the conservers of learning...Teaching what? Teaching facts of yesterday, then, later, facts of day before yesterday? Whence did those facts arise? I trust I have made it clear that I am talking, today, about creative thinking.

Although the value of this approach to education won’t likely surprise those who are based in the fine arts, the increasingly pragmatic emphasis on education with a corresponding focus on acquiring a degree makes this opinion seem incredibly out of vogue. At the same time, if anything, the passage of time should make this argument even more prescient. Interdisciplinary influences have been shown, time and time again, to demonstrate how critical and creative thinking share similar sources of inspiration. Assuming that students are curious, the promise of the liberal arts education, in fact, is this kind of curious blend—where young students can form kinds of connections in growing minds that would be impossible within a siloed career. Beauty becomes an important ally in the war against fascism.

Problematically, instead, educational systems still seem stuck on an emphasis on compliance, obedience, and memorization as ways to produce qualitative proof of learning. The need for efficient learning seems essential in a society where jobs are scarce and student debt becomes a crippling problem. This makes the conservative approach to education seem prudent, if not necessary.

Nonetheless, the potential that Sieg saw in Iowa remains present, and Hancher Auditorium’s programming provides the opportunity for students to see performances from world-class acts that would otherwise have little reason to come to the state. The ability to see a variety of features provides students with an ingredient within their education that inspires creative thinking. As long as Hancher Auditorium continues to invite the world to its stage, promoting an expansive vision for what art is and how art remains crucial to the human experience, Iowa will continue to produce humanologists well-versed in critical and creative thinking.
